If you are a young veterinarian interested in a career in the pig industry, then the Doug Ross Overseas Travel and Study Award will stand you in great stead for your future career.

The award gives young veterinarians a chance to travel overseas to further their personal and professional development by attending the European Symposium on Porcine Health Management to be held in Nantes, France, on 22-24th April 2015. The award presents a wonderful opportunity for improving skills through continuing education and building contacts from the international veterinary community.

The winner will receive a return economy airfare from Australia to France, registration fees, incidental travel and accommodation and living expenses for the period of the meetings. The total value of the award is approximately AUD$4000. Other international travel options will also be considered.

The award recognises the contribution of the late Doug Ross (1947–2000) to the Australian pig industry. Doug was a veterinarian who was passionately involved in the pig industry and was a mentor for many people in the industry.

For further information about the award, contact Ross Cutler at rosscutler@optusnet.com.au or 03 5255 5614.

Application forms are available from Pat Mitchell at pat.Mitchell@australianpork.com.au

All applications must be in writing and submitted electronically to Pat Mitchell by 30 November 2014.
