International and National

The Egyptian government announced this week that the country is likely to only import around 4 million mt of wheat in 2023, which is 5 per cent lower year-on-year, as their domestic production is expected to rise.

Russian statistics agency Rosstat announced this week that gross figures for harvest in 2022/23 is situated at 153.83 million mt, setting a new record for the country, this is also a 27 per cent increase compared to the previous year.

Russia's government has also announced this week a reduction in the country's tax rates for wheat and corn for the week 18th till 26th of Jan, however barley will rise marginally.

Japan has issued an international tender this week for over 78,000 mt of US, Canadian and Australian wheat, which is down from 90,000 in the previous week.

The Australian Bureau of Statistics announced over the last week that Australia has exported over 1.8 million mt of wheat in November which is 11 per cent lower than October, with China and Indonesia as the two largest markets.

Viterra's network in South Australia and western Victoria have hit 8.45 million mt of grain this week, with the Eyre Peninsula breaking its record to reach 3.2 million mt.

Wheat

QLD/Nth NSW

Local wheat markets were starting to firm following a slow return from the holiday period. SFW and feed grades were finding greater demand as Aussie wheat trades into the south-east Asian region. Domestic feed users are currently extending coverage amid lower-than-expected supplies from the east coast.

Sth NSW/VIC/SA

Wheat markets have continued to come under pressure. Nearby shorts are all but covered and attention turns towards getting new business. Exporters are reporting the demand side is sluggish and not overly keen to commit. This is especially true on the container side of things where its only existing business getting covered that is supporting the bid.

Barley

Sth QLD/Nth NSW

Barley markets were also displaying mild strength for similar reasons to SFW and reduced supply across southern QLD – northern NSW drawing arc. Demand from local consumers was supporting Delivered markets into feed homes with southern states continuing to find demand from export markets, which is ensuring supply is not diverted north.

Sth NSW/VIC/SA

Barley values are similar to slightly lower on this time last week with a firming AUD not helping prices along with slow demand right now from the exporters it seems. Most support for the bid is coming from domestic buyers. Malt barley pricing continues to be firm with particularly strong interest for Planet malt and Spartacus.

Sorghum

QLD

New crop sorghum markets were continuing to firm with the lack of grower selling and declining crop conditions across southern QLD and northern NSW. Growers are still currently awaiting further rainfall before committing to further sales with rhetoric increasing around increased SOR2 volumes. Container demand into Asian markets remains the key driver at the present time for sorghum.
